This elegant, contemporary version of the classic “schoolhouse chair,” as comfortable as it is distinctive. The steel rods and high-strength epoxy of our proprietary Eustis Joints® allowed us to remove the unsightly stretchers without compromising the strength and durability of the chair. As with all of our Eustis Joint® chairs, the warranty covers the first 20 years, but the owner can expect many more decades of useful service life.

Working with Boston architects Shepley Bulfinch, we added an elegant set of arms to our Charleston chair to create a true classic. This contemporary version of the classic “schoolhouse chair” has turned heads since its introduction in the early 2000s. And the best part is that the entire chair is engineered with our proprietary Eustis Joint®, so the chair is as durable as it is elegant.
